APPALACHIA: A SOUTHEASTERN WIND SYMPHONY Presents CHAMBER FOR A CHANGE

ARTISTIC DIRECTOR LOGAN CAMPBELL Leads APPALACHIA in CONCERT OF CHAMBER WORKS FOR WINDS

GREENVILLE, SC - October 21, 2022 - Appalachia: A Southeastern Wind Symphony returns to Greenville, South Carolina for its second concert of the season, “Chamber for a Change.” Featuring works old and new performed by collegiate musicians and young professionals from across the southeast, the concert will be held November 5, 2022 at 7:30 PM in Furman University’s Herring Music Pavilion.

Artistic Director, Logan Campbell, will lead the ensemble of some of Appalachia’s finest as he returns to his undergraduate alma mater, Furman University. Says Campbell, “Appalachia has worked very hard to prepare and present high-quality wind ensemble repertoire in our five seasons, but we are very excited to highlight our versatility with chamber music selections that also shape our medium in important ways.”

Musical selections include chamber works for winds such as Valerie Coleman’s “Umoja,” Katahj Copley’s “Serenade,” and others. The concert will also feature Igor Stravinsky’s “Octet for Wind Instruments.”

“Works like Valerie Coleman’s stunning Umoja and Katahj Copley’s Serenade illuminate the newer approach to wind chamber repertoire,” says Campbell, who formed Appalachia: A Southeastern Wind Symphony back in 2019. “This ensemble has continued to be a true joy in the groups I work with because of the enthusiastic musicians who come into every project with excitement and professionalism. We are proud of our musicians and I am honored to work with them along their journey in music.”

“Chamber for a Change” will be held at Furman University’s Harper Hall in the Herring Music Pavilion. Concert will be at 7:30 PM, doors open at 7 PM. Tickets are free of charge, with a suggested donation of $10 or more.
